Write a program which will create two processes.

One process will add the even numbers and the other process will add the odd numbers.

The input i.e. the numbers must be entered in any order.